

CONTINUAL GUARD KEPT AT CELL OF CONDEMNED MAN

Fear Expressed That Snipes
May Attempt to End
His Life

REFUSES NOURISHMENT

Murderer Restless and Weak; Exhibits Mental Agony

DOYLESTOWN, May 21—(INS)—Fearing that William C. Snipes, 23, Philadelphia, convicted for the murder of Edward Gamils, 44, during a hold-up of the Blue Spruce Inn near Treves last February 14th may attempt to commit suicide as a result of the moroseness, induced by a hunger strike instituted when the jury recommended death in the electric chair, officials at the Bucks County prison here placed a continual guard surrounding the youthful prisoner today.

Attaches at the jail said Snipes had been considerably weakened physically because of his voluntary refusal of nourishment. They said he was extremely restless and exhibited great mental agony over the jury's findings. Marion Ellis, 21, Lancaster, S. C., and John Tagg, Jr., of South Langhorne, Snipes' companions in the hold-up and slaying, were to be sentenced Monday for the slaying. Both pleaded guilty to murder charges. Ellis appeared as a State's witness against Snipes.

53 Tots Are Examined On Child Health Day

Fifty-three children who will enter school for the first time next fall, were examined by physicians and nurses at the community house, yesterday. That number of interested parents took their small boys and girls for examination, and it is believed that in practically every case where recommendations have been given for certain corrections, these will be attended to before the opening of the next school term. The parents were advised along certain lines when defects were discovered in the children, and urged to have corrections made as soon as possible in order that the school work of the little ones will not be hampered.

Physicians present who gave of their time and knowledge for the youngsters of the borough were: I. R. Bush, William C. LeCompte, H. Doyle Webb, Frank Lehman, S. Thorne Harris, J. deB. Abbott. This group was augmented by nurses: Miss Lucia Clancy, Miss Nora Jones, and Mrs. Mulford Callanan.

Members of the Mothers' Association of the Bristol public schools, who have been calling at homes in the borough urging mothers to have their children examined, assisted with the work yesterday.

Tonsils, eyes, teeth, etc., were examined. It was stated by the group of workers that but few of the 53 tots were found to be underweight.

HONORS ABOUT EVENLY DIVIDED AS SECOND PERIOD CLOSE NEARS

Nearly All Candidates in Gold
Race Are Surging
Forward

With honors thus far about evenly divided, candidates in The Courier's now famous $10,000 Gold Gift campaign are preparing with feverish haste and intensity to make their final stand for victory before ten o'clock this coming Monday night—the close of the second period schedule of votes.

Surging forward at the rate of several thousand votes at a clip all of the leading candidates are dashing through the final days at top speed—straining every nerve in their final effort for supremacy.

More general and concerted action should take place during the next few days than at any other time since the

Shrubbery Thieves Raid Lawns In This Section

Residents in lower section of Bucks County are aroused over the continued thefts of shrubbery and flowers from lawns. This is occurring not only in Bristol but other towns as well.

A number of Bristol lawns have been raided recently and flowering plants and shrubs have been stolen. Handsome azaleas in full bloom have been dug up and taken away during the night.

Residents of Andalusia have complained to the Morrisville State Police that during the past two nights hundreds of dollars' worth of shrubbery and flowers have been stolen from the yards and lawns of the property owners in that section. The loss is estimated at $800.

Police believe that an organized group of thieves is working because of the vast number of plants taken at one time.

Last year the residents of Langhorne were victims of the same thing. Two men were apprehended by the police, who are keeping close watch on the Andalusia section now.

CROSSING OF DELAWARE RE-ENACTED BY TROOPS

Repeat Feat of Washington,
But in Present-Day
Manner

MEN FROM CAMP DIX

With the site the same but the equipment quite different, Washington's epic crossing of the Delaware was re-enacted yesterday by United States Army troops from Camp Dix at Washington Crossing.

Hundreds of spectators, including descendants of some of the men who made the perilous trip across the ice-filled river on the eve of the Battle of Trenton, lined the banks of the stream on both the New Jersey and Pennsylvania sides to see how the crossing would be accomplished today.

In the demonstration seven pontoon boats, constructed of aluminum and duralum, replaced the wooden row-boats used in the original crossing. Loaded to the gunwales with men, mules, machine guns and high-powered rifles, the craft, propelled by outboard motors instead of oars, duplicated in a few minutes the feat which required long hours of toil back in 1776. During the demonstration an airplane, flying overhead, saluted the soldiers and then proceeded on its way.

The event was staged to show the efficiency and cooperation of infantry, machine gunners and the engineers.

Following a small signal boat of the Engineers' Department containing staff officers, a three-boat pontoon raft filled with soldiers was the first to cross. Then came another three-boat light pontoon on which was loaded a platoon of machine gunners. The third craft was a two-boat pontoon with troops, and the fourth boat had a rifle platoon, with full equipment, on board.

The fifth boat also contained troops and a small field gun, ready for use. The sixth and seventh boats were propelled by oars. These craft staged a race across the river. One contained a rifle platoon and the other contained 25 men with full equipment.

In the absence of Major George Mayo, commander of the First Engineer Combat Regiment, of Fort Detrick, Del., Captain Ingalls, of the engineers at Camp Dix, was in charge of the test.

Lieutenant Corman Hahn, commanding officer of Company C, First Engineers, was in active charge of the crossing. His engineers had supervision of the boats.

The troops were brought from Camp Dix yesterday morning in a motor convoy. The boats were loaded on trucks, top downward. Everything was transported. The convoy was directed by Lieutenant Fred Henney, Camp Dix.

The tests were witnessed by Colonel Hobbs, chief of staff of the First Division, and were pronounced a success.

Mr. J. R. Hendricks and daughter, Miss Laurabel Hendricks, of 611 Cedar street, spent Sunday in Germantown, visiting Mrs. Hendricks' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Haines.

POPPY DAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE BY LEGION AUXILIARY ON THE 23rd OF MAY; BLOOMS TO BE SOLD FOR WORTHY CAUSE

With the coming of Memorial Day, there is no more fitting or perfect tribute that can be paid to the men who sacrificed their lives for their country, than by having every person possible wear a Memorial Poppy.

The Memorial Poppy, sales of which are sponsored by The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, is a replica of the poppies which grew on the battlefields of France and Belgium during the World War. It has been chosen as the memorial flower of the World War dead because it grew where they fell, the one touch of beauty in the desolate battle areas.

But the poppy does not only commemorate the death of those who died in active service. Every year which passes since the Armistice has been signed sees new soldiers' graves in cemeteries—more than 25,000 annually. Every year sees additional families left helpless and dependent, while the war still takes its toll. It is estimated that nearly 40,000 dependent children have been added in the last year to the thousands whose welfare must be safeguarded by the Legion and Auxiliary. In addition to the children of the dead, there are the children of the disabled. Thousands of disabled men entered Government hospitals each month during the past year, many of them leaving their families destitute. These families must be fed and clothed—these homes must be maintained, until the veteran is restored to his earning power. These facts help to explain why the Welfare work of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary is increasing steadily, and why it is imperative that many poppies be sold this year.

The Posts of The American Legion and the Units of The American Legion Auxiliary in Pennsylvania will sell over one million and a half poppies this year. The entire proceeds of the poppy sales are used strictly for welfare purposes. Every cent in the funds created by the sale of poppies is used for direct relief, which is absolutely essential in the majority of cases. Every Poppy sold in Pennsylvania by the American Legion has been made by a disabled veteran in a Government Hospital, many of whom are not receiving compensation from the Government. The disabled veterans are in this manner enabled to make a little money for their families.

Poppies sold by The American Legion in Pennsylvania have been made at the following hospitals: Perry Point, Md.; Hospital No. 49, Philadelphia; Aspinwall Hospital, Aspinwall; Marine Hospital, Pittsburgh; Mount Alto Hospital, South Mountain, and Pennsylvania Soldiers and Sailors Home, Erie. The local post or unit will begin the sale on Saturday, May 23rd.

The primary purpose of the poppy sale, of course, is to pay tribute to the World War dead. Wearing a scarlet poppy on the coat is a beautiful way to remember the many thousands of soldier-dead. This touching tribute alone would be worth the most strenuous efforts of the members of the Legion and Auxiliary. But it is more than a gesture—it is a practical, generous way of remembering the living as well as the dead—a way of helping the war's living victims back to health and happiness; of instilling some spirit of hope in homes broken by sickness and poverty.

ARTILLERY CHAPLAIN TO SPEAK HERE SUNDAY

Captain Elias Auger, of Reserve Corps, to Address
Foreign War "Vets"

PUBLIC INVITED TO IT

The speaker for the annual Memorial Day service to be conducted in the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, Wood street and Lincoln avenue, on Sunday evening, by the Joseph A. Schumacher Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Ladies' Auxiliary, will be Captain Elias Auger, of the Chaplain Reserve Corps.

Captain Auger was chaplain of an artillery regiment during the World War, and he wears the bars of the three greatest battles that the American Army fought, viz., the battle of the Marne, the battle of St. Mihiel, and the Argonne. In the last battle he was gassed, and spent nine weeks in European hospitals. He was highly commended for bravery by his commanding officer, Colonel McMillan.

When the Officers Reserve Corps was organized, Captain Auger, like many other ex-service men, again heard the call of service, and joined the reserves at once, with the sole desire to serve the men in uniform.

At present, Captain Auger is the senior chaplain of the 316th Regiment of Infantry, whose commanding officer is Colonel H. Harrison Smith.

The Joseph A. Schumacher Post takes this opportunity to extend a most cordial invitation to this service, not only to its own members, but to all the ex-service men in the community, and the public as well.

GIRLS ENJOY SHOW AT RIVERSIDE THEATRE

Prizes Are Awarded to Poster and Marble Contest
Winners

FINE PROGRAM IS GIVEN

As numberless streams from various sources feed into a common channel and thus combine to make up the parent stream, which carries the combined volume, so did the streets of Bristol yesterday afternoon empty their effluence of girls into the Riverside Theatre. The floor groaned under the load and the sidewalks bulged.

The girls came from all sections and the line awaiting admittance extended from the theatre nearly to Mulberry street.

Manager Keen was on hand and aided in keeping the youngsters in order. Some had brought their younger sisters with them and others stood in line partaking of a light lunch. Finally the doors swung open and in swarmed the girls.

An interesting program was presented through the courtesy of Mr. Keen, who provided the free matinee performance.

Mrs. George Miller, chairlady of the general committee, presided, and awarded the various prizes.

A handsome silver cup was presented to Miss Jane Koch, Edgely, who was declared the marble champion. This cup must be won three times for permanent ownership.

Poster prizes in Class A were given to the following: Louise Descamps, $5; Betty Hill, $3; Marjorie Marshall, $2.

Class B: Carol Stewart, $2 and a special prize given by Mr. Keen of a pen and pencil set; Beatrice Croft, $1; Thelma Weik, $1.

A cordial welcome was extended the children by Mr. Keen, and there were brief remarks by Mrs. Miller. The picture, "Oh, Yeah," with Zasu Pitts, was shown.

SCIENTISTS FETE PROFESSOR GAGE ON HIS BIRTHDAY

80th Anniversary Marked On Day of Wistar Institute
Outing

AN ALL-DAY PROGRAM

Tour of Inspection of Philadelphia and Emilie Structures

By Staff Correspondent

EMILIE, May 21.—Professor Simon H. Gage, one of the original members of the advisory board of the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology, was honored at the annual outing of the members of the institute's advisory board and research staff yesterday, the occasion marking the 80th anniversary of Professor Gage's birth.

The program of the day included a luncheon, dinner, and visits to the institute's buildings in Philadelphia and here.

Dr. Gage is a professor emeritus of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., and is well known for his microscopic works. His books on this work are numerous.

Approximately 35 scientists, including the advisory board and research staff of Wistar, and others from various universities of the country, participated in the day's activities.

During the morning a tour of the institute's laboratories and printing department in Philadelphia, was scheduled.

The journey to the institute's research farm here was made by bus, the gentlemen partaking of a luncheon at the residence of Dr. Milton J. Greenman, Ph. B., M. D., Sc. D., director of the institute.

Editham B. Morris, president of the institute, extended congratulations to Professor Gage, the fellow-scientists then drinking the health of the one passing the four-score mark, grape juice being the beverage used.

A visit to the several buildings on the local farm was enjoyed, the laboratories and especially constructed buildings for the housing of the animal colonies proving of great interest.

This 150-acre tract has been much improved during the past year, modern homes being constructed, buildings erected for the housing of rats, opossums, etc., and ground improved about the fine springs abounding on the place.

The two new rat buildings at the Emilie farm are very unique, forty cages being located in each of the spacious rooms. The cages have been so constructed that the animals may use passage-ways through the walls to the outside and sunlight when they so desire. In each of the cages is a small turntable for exercising. Colonies of these rats, used for research work, have not been located at the local farm as yet, but it is expected the study will be taken up here within a few months.

Steam sterilizer has been provided for the sterilization of the bedding, food, etc., of the rodents, and a sealed room is provided where these stores will be kept. Watering devices in each cage are so arranged that there will be no possible chance of contamination of the water supply. An apparatus will also be placed at the farm for canning of tomatoes, these to be used in the animal's menu.

Heat for the structures is also provided in an indirect manner, the air first being blown into the basement, dust being taken from same, and the warm fresh air then being sent to the other floors. All of these buildings, which proved of great interest to the group yesterday, are practically fireproof.

Ten workers will be located at the research farm during the entire year, this number being greatly augmented during the summer.

The climax of the day's activities was marked at a dinner served to the same group at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, last evening.

In speaking of the progress at the research farm here Mr. Morris, who presented the site to the Wistar Institute for use in research work, spoke of the advance made thus far at the Lane.

HE PLAYS THE GAME
Is golf going to take the place of baseball as our foremost national sport?

You may scoff at the suggestion. But sporting goods manufacturers estimate that at least 2,000,000 Americans are golfers.
And that is only a beginning. Anyone with his eyes open realizes that a golf craze is sweeping the country like a prairie fire. In popularity, golf is growing far faster than baseball grew in its early days.

For every one that plays golf, there are five who would be playing if they could.

In the main, golf is a rich man's game. The price of getting into a good golf club is prohibitive for the average man—and usually intentionally so, to keep the membership "exclusive."

The scarcity of golf courses for the person of moderate means drives home the principle that America has made practically no provisions for recreational sports for the people.
If golf ever does dethrone baseball, it will be a good thing for the national health.

The baseball fan rarely plays the game himself. He sits and watches professionals play. For this reason, baseball in America is no longer a sport. It is a form of theatricals.

You do not, however, find golf enthusiasts sitting back and watching other players—except an occasional star. The golfer is not a grandstand loafer. He gets out and plays the game himself.

TOMORROW
The scientists are giving support to the admonition of the Sermon on the Mount to mortals against being overanxious for the morrow. They, too, offer assurance that "the morrow will take thought for the things of itself."

Is there anxiety lest the sun burn itself out in a few million years and grow cold? A French scientist rises to dispel that anxiety by informing us authoritatively that it will continue to give the earth its heat and life for 150 billion years. This contingency is so remote as not to divert thought from the sufficient evil which the present brings in remembered losses and bothersome debts.

Is there Malthusian despair over the incommensurate growth of population in static national boundaries, over the problem as to how these increasing multitudes are to be fed and as to how they are to be clothed? The chemist promptly promises more abundant crops from soils artificially enriched and even warmed, and supplements these with synthetic foods.

Is there fear lest the fuel supply will not be continuously replenished, but will some day be exhausted and man's mobility and industrial activity restricted? Again the resourceful chemist has his substitutes ready or in prospect.

Science has given man promise of a longer lease on life, removed anxieties for the morrow and allowed him, looking back over the way by which he has come, to expect an evolution to an even higher state of being.

The old-fashioned daughter got a shingle at intervals, also—but it was made of wood.

YARDLEY

so loyally up to now to put forth every effort and draw on every resource to the extent that when the final day of reckoning comes everything will have been done and nothing left undone to better her chances to win.

Honors Circulated

It is no doubt natural with such intense interest being shown in the great race that some candidates would attempt to discourage others by circulating rumors more insidious than accurate. One hears of immense vote reserves stored "away" to dumbfound participants in the end, etc. But the tales that one hears are so highly embellished with frills, so utterly inconceivable, that their untruthfulness is readily apparent. These exaggerated stories hurt no one but those who attempt to circulate them. The real candidates are those who are too busy either to listen or be bluffed by these would-be bluffers.

Competition Is Keen

So, on the basis of personal honor the competition is being waged zealously. Shedding lustre on this inspiring sight is the civic pride manifesting itself. This mighty factor is the bulwark behind the various candidates! In short, each community and each "set" is solidly behind its favorites and no community that values its reputation for doing things is going to let someone else walk off with the most desirable prize when a little concerted effort will "bring it home."

For this reason, and for the reason that the differences in value between the grand capital prize of the campaign and the secondary award is $500 (quite a tidy sum in itself) you can expect to see a desperate struggle on all sides before the big prize is finally

CHAPTER XXXI.
DAVE's other hand left the control stick and searched quickly around the edges of the seat cushion beneath him. No luck. He had known a sudden search of hope that there might be a parachute pack there which he had overlooked in his hasty survey of the plane. So he could not leap from his ship, land in the midst of those dancing lights and fight it out, hand to hand, with that blue-chinned, hard-eyed Mueller and his gang of hired killers. There was no landing place nearer than Mueller's field. No time to go there and return, afoot, through that narrow road through the jungle.
He had forgotten the other plane whose whirling propeller he had seen emerge from the hangar door. It did not matter, anyway. Nothing mattered now but to find some way to help Joan. A scant half-hour—or had it been a week?—he had held her in his arms, crushing those soft, fragrant lips to his. There had been a faint perfume in her hair. Jasmine. And now all he could smell was burned gas.
No Time to Lose.
He stared grimly down at the moonlit ground near the houses, wondering whether he might be able to live through a crash landing there. Perhaps he could swoop down to that tiny space in front of the house, steer his ship between those palms and duck into the cockpit while the tree trunks sheered the wings from the bullet-shaped fuselage. But no; were he to die down there there would be nobody to rescue Joan. Gerry and Talbot were on their way, but Joan belonged to him and he dared not leave her safety to others.
There was a faint speck on the ground near the corner house, moving slowly toward the county road. Dave did not know that his hands and feet moved on the controls but the plane dropped like a falling projectile, careening down past the tops of the pines and palms. Somewhere to the left a knife-stab of crimson split the blackness. He did not see it. His eyes were focussed upon that fast-growing patch of white in the moonlight. It was Hannah, struggling patiently through the underbrush. Even as he recognized her shapeless figure he saw her trip and fall headlong. Then the plane zoomed again, whirling back toward the darting flash-lights. Men were running away from the group of houses, converging upon a dark shape at the edge of the road which led through the jungle.
One of the flashlights shone full upon that dark bulk. It was the motor truck, moving slowly away from the overhanging trees. The light veered away, but the image remained stamped upon Dave's memory. On the box seat was Joan, struggling helplessly between two men, one of whom held her tightly in his encircling arms. The roof of the jungle closed in over the truck. The pilot cut tight circles over the solid surface of vegetation, watching impatiently for the next appearance of its headlights.
And then a new sound penetrated into his consciousness, a shrill drone that cut through the staccato roar of his own engine. A huge black something swept across his line of vision. Instinctively he threw his ship into a twisting dive. The shadowy form of another airplane swished directly in front of him. From its inky fuselage came a vicious tongue of flame, licking straight at his face. He ducked his head. The bullets hit a great chunk out of the cowlings beside his face.
He jerked his ship out of her screaming dive, groping in his lap for the automatic he had placed there. But he could not find it. The weapon must have dropped to the cockpit floor during one of the plane's wild gyrations.
The gangster's monoplane was turning in pursuit. Dave banked away from the attack, leaning over and feeling along the floorboards for the missing gun. Perhaps it had slipped back into the empty spaces of the fuselage. His head was beneath the level of the cockpit wall as his exploring fingers fumbled at the edges of the flooring. He knew his ship was healing dangerously, but he did not care. If he could not find that gun he was through anyway; it would make little difference whether he crashed or was shot down at the other pilot's leisure.

He aimed full up at the belly of the other plane as it thundered over him.

All Set.
His index finger touched a cool, corrugated surface. He clutched at it, his spirits soaring instantly. To heck with the other flyers and their double-barreled shot gun! He was ready for them now. He straightened in his seat and looked about. Undirected, his ship had flown across the abandoned houses and was barely skimming the tree tops beside the county highway. He straightened out the sagging left wing, then glanced about for frightened gull. The shot-gun blazed. Something twitched at Dave's right sleeve. He aimed full up at the belly of the other plane as it thundered over him. He jerked at his trigger once, twice, thrice. Mustn't waste too many bullets. Better to save some for the man who was holding Joan tight in his arms. Dave pulled back on his stick and whirled around in pursuit of the other ship.

He could see its black bulk, now far beyond the county road. He urged his own ship on, eager for another carefully aimed shot. It was this plane which was delaying him, preventing him from speeding after Joan, who would be waiting for him to rescue her. He must get rid of it, smash it as one would smash any obstacle that interfered at such a time. There was no joy of personal, hand-to-hand conflict here, as there always was during a rough-and-tumble on the ground. There was just an interfering plane to get rid of. That was all.

Motion Pictures Taken In "Rockies" Shown to P. T. A.

HULMEVILLE, May 21.—Motion pictures taken by Cyrus E. Smith in the Canadian Rockies while on a hunt for big game were shown to those attending the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of Hulmeville-Middletown public schools in the school house, last evening.

Thirty-five adults were an attendance as well as a number of the school children, who thoroughly enjoyed the program. Deer, bears, and other wild animals, as well as scenes of the pack train, riding horses and those participating in the trip, were thrown on the screen.

The business meeting which preceded was presided over by President Richard Hopkins. This is the final meeting for the school term.

A motion was carried that $5 be donated toward purchase of a cup for the Bucks County Interscholastic Meet, the same to bear an inscription showing the local P. T. A. is the donor.

Several of the men volunteered to assist with keeping the children in the parade formation on Memorial Day.

Refreshments will be served to the children of the first and second grades within a few days, these two classes having the greatest representation of parents in attendance.

Girls' Parade Marshal Issues Instructions

the Lutheran Church. They are also requested to keep the head of their line back far enough so that the thru traffic on Wood street may not be impeded. The Novelty Band will precede the fifth ward girls and the sixth ward girls will have the Cadet's Bugle Corps as their musical escort. When the line of parade passes out Jefferson avenue, this fourth section will fall in behind the third section, as the end of the latter section reaches Wood street, thus completing the formation of the parade.

The parade will disband after entering the High School grounds, and the athletic events will start immediately, and be in charge of the athletic committee. Through the kindness of Mr. Tomesani, the electrical contractor on Mill street, the committee will have the use of the amplifying apparatus which was used so successfully on Boys' Day, and on the occasion of the Bucks County Schools' Athletic Meet. All announcements will be made through the amplifying horns, which it is hoped will greatly expedite the running off of the athletic events.

WHAT IS A MORE PROFITABLE WAY THAN SECURING SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE COURIER AND CAPITALIZING ON THE BIG VOTES FOR THE NECESSARY CREDITS TO WIN ONE OF THESE BIG BAGS OF GOLD THAT WILL SOON BE AWARDED LIVE HUSTLERS IN THIS MAMMOTH FREE GOLD GIFT ELECTION. THE TIME FOR WINNING IS GROWING SHORTER AND SHORTER AS THE DAYS RAPIDLY PASS AND ALMOST BEFORE YOU KNOW IT THE BIG SECOND PERIOD VOTE POSSIBILITIES WILL HAVE PASSED BEYOND RECALL.

Every hour is of vital importance to your success in the short time that remains. Only a few days of the second period left.

This Chest of Gold will be given away as follows: To the candidate securing the greatest number of Points in subscriptions between now and closing, Monday night, June 1st, the close of the third period.

—EXTENSIONS—

Extension subscriptions are proving a harvest for some of the more live candidates these days. For instance, a subscription extended from one to six years carries votes totaling 442,000 (clubs extra). While it is true that NEW subscriptions count the most, it is also true that hundreds of thousands of votes can be accrued by carefully going over the list of those who have previously aided you in the race and securing an extension of a year or more.

ONLY A FEW HOURS REMAIN and opportunity will be gone forever. Only a few hours in which to garner a winning vote total. Realizing the shortness of the time that remains, and the tremendous vote value of these few remaining hours, candidates are hustling with might and main to collect every available subscription before the fatal hour of 10 o'clock next Monday night. Candidates are to be congratulated on the stick-to-it-iveness and determination that has been evidenced on most every hand. After all, dogged determination and perseverance are the essentials that win in any battle. The efforts and diligence of the candidates these past few days should be crowned with an avalanche of thousands of votes. This is the time for candidates to hurl themselves into the fray. This last week of the big votes gives promise of being the biggest of the entire campaign. Everyone seems determined to have their prize as big as possible and to accomplish this goal necessitates taking full advantage of the present vote possibilities. It is a fight to the finish now, and the laggard will fall by the wayside while the most aggressive will pull out in front and capture the valuable and attractive prizes.

New Subscriptions Count the Greatest Number of Votes

Do you realize that only a little over two weeks of the campaign remain? And that the Second Period ends Monday night? And the next question of importance is what are you going to do with this short time that remains? Winning candidates are not going to waste it, let it slip by and regret it afterwards. Idlers do not win the big prizes in this campaign, but there is yet time to forge ahead into the working class and claim any one of the prizes offered.

NEW subscriptions are of greatest vote value. During the second period new subscriptions carry a bonus vote of 30,000 extra votes per year, 60,000 for a two-year and 90,000 for a three-year. After the close of the second period, only 20,000 extra will be credited. Not only is there a material reduction in the extra votes for new but there is also a big decrease in the schedule of votes. With this thought in mind it is highly imperative that extra effort be put forth this short period. NOW a one-year new subscription would credit 38,000 votes while in the third period only 25,000 (clubs extra). A six-year NEW subscription NOW will earn 470,000 credits while in the final period only 160,000 (clubs extra).

A little more than two weeks of the Campaign remain. In a very short time this stupendous list of awards will be made. To hesitate now might spell defeat. This period IS important. Every DAY is important — almost before we know it, this Second Period and its vote possibilities will be over — and then there will remain but one short week before the period of the sealed ballot box will terminate this great election.

Here's How You Can Win The

DOES the oil stove you have in your kitchen waste time for you? Here's an easy way to find out. See how long it takes to boil two quarts of water. Check its time record on this task against that of Perfection's newly invented High-Power burner.

High-Power boils a half gallon of water in less than nine minutes, fries an inch-thick steak in ten minutes.

High-Power burners give a clean steady heat that strikes the whole cooking surface for uniform results without scorch spots or slow edges. High-Power burners are economical of fuel. Tilting drums make lighting easy.

Beautiful new Perfection stoves and ranges, with every burner a High-Power, are built in sizes for every kitchen. Porcelain, lacquer and baked enamel finishes. Even low-priced models are dressed in lovely new colors... combinations of pastel green, ivory and satin black. Prices as low as $18.

Before you buy any stove, consider the cost of fuel. Kerosene is the convenient, dependable fuel. High-Power Perfections give the cooking speed of the costlier fuels... using economical kerosene. Visit your dealer

BATTING ORGY AIDS INDEPENDENTS' VICTORY

Schedule For Tonight
FEDERALS vs. HARRIMAN
Last Night's Result
Independents, 12; St. Ann's, 1

By T. M. Juno

Slamming the offerings of Lasprella and Whyno for eleven safe blows the Independents scored an easy 12-1 win over St. Ann's last night on the "Saints" field.

There was no doubt as to whom would be the victor of the fray after the second inning when the "Indies" shoved three runs across the plate and then added two more in the following frame. Seven runs in the fourth put the Independents so far ahead that the game was called after the fifth bat. Jones served them for the Independents and was in masterful form. This same hurler who one week ago failed to last two innings against the boys from Dorrance street allowed but three hits and kept them well scattered. Two of the three bingles were triples and one led to the scoring of the "Saints" only tally.

Jones' mates gave him faultless support and pulled him out of several holes before the game was put on ice. The St. Ann's team was charged with six errors which seemed to come at the wrong time.

"Tut" Romeo and Leo Gelason led the winners in their batting rampage. Romeo collected three consecutive singles while Gleason had a triple and a single. "Jimmy" Massilla continued his fine defensive work for the winners who chalked up their second victory in as many nights.

The "Indies" counted three times in the second. Purcell was hit with a pitched ball; Gleason forced Purcell, Whyno to Seneca; Gleason stole second; Jas. Masilla was passed; Romeo hit a short single to right, scoring Gleason; Jones singled to center and Massilla scored; on La Rosa's error of Avella's grounder, Romeo scored; Cochran hit to Lasprella and was out.

Two more went to the Independents in the third. With one out, Purcell tripled to center; Gleason singled to center, scoring Purcell; Massilla scored Gleason with a long single to left.

Gilardi's triples followed by Brushia's long fly to right field counted the only St. Ann's tally of the game.

Tennis Classics Approaching

By HARDIN BURNLEY

SHE IS OUT TO STEAL SOME OF HELEN WILLS' GLORY BY TRIUMPHING AT WIMBLEDON THIS YEAR!

WITH the French hard court championships under way—in which the United States has high hopes for the success of our representatives, George M. Lott, Jr., and John Van Ryn—the world's annual tennis classics are at hand. Uncle Sam is also relying on "Frank" Shields, "Sid" Wood and Wilmer Allison to achieve victories in the important matches to come. Critics are divided, but most of them agree that in doubles Lott and Van Ryn are America's chief hopes.

The hard court matches at Paris will not be terminated until the end of the month; then our Davis Cup tennis team will travel to Prague and Berlin for big local tournaments. After that comes glorious Wimbledon from June 22 to July 4. And, finally, the Davis Cup matches—the supreme international classic of tennis.

While Capt. Sam Hardy's Davis Cup stars are in the sports sun, it also beams effulgently (strike her Wimbledon's opponents pink for that word!) on Miss Helen Jacobs, California's native and neighbor of the retired Queen of World Courts, Mrs. Helen Willis Moody.

These charming Helens were never chums. Ignoring that human factor, the United States tennis bosses at Wimbledon last year teamed them in the doubles. Legend hath it that one of them demurred politely, but the officials insisted—and our Helens lost, 7-5, 1-6, 6-4. They did not quite "click."

When Mrs. Moody returned to the United States she decided not to enter our national championship, but said nothing about that Wimbledon incident.

Reports indicate that Miss Jacobs' game is much improved

(her friends still insist she will be recognized as "even greater than Wills" some day) and Wimbledon may show "the other Helen" at her best. At this writing rumor has it that Mrs. Moody may reconsider her retirement resolution and leave for the other side. If that should happen, Miss Jacobs will have to be at her best, indeed—eh, what!

Meanwhile the so-called "boy talent" on the United States Davis Cup team is striving ardently with July and St. Cloud in view. France is confident that its team will repulse our invasion and most of the game's critics are of the same opinion. Current play in the hard court tournament will cast considerable light on what Uncle Sam can honestly hope for from his picked international cup contestants.
